On receipt of a memorandum from Mr. Bagnall, stating that 70 out of 128 references listed in [REDACTED] had been contributed by FDD, I called [REDACTED] and asked him why FDD had not been given credit. I told [REDACTED] that I in no way wanted to start an interoffice war on this but felt sure that he could understand that by giving credit where credit is due, the researchers would receive greater cooperation. [REDACTED] assured me that he and [REDACTED] would take this up at their staff meeting tomorrow morning. I pointed out to [REDACTED] that I did not believe it was a general policy in OSI as many of the OSI publications listed all OO division references but that apparently there was a slipup in [REDACTED] Division.
